Chinese firms shut Primark brand factories in Yangon

Two Chinese-owned garment factories in Yangon’s Shwepyithar Industrial Zone are shutting down, leaving more than 2,200 workers without a job, according to a local union. The factories make clothes for the Irish multinational fashion retailer Primark. The Solidarity Trade Union Of Myanmar made the announcement on its Facebook page. The companies did not give a reason for shutting the factories. International fashion brands are coming under increasing pressure from their customers to shun Myanmar due to its human rights record. Primark had not responded to a request for comment on the Yangon factories at time of publishing. Myanmar is facing a major economic crisis following the Feb. 1, 2021 military coup. A quarter of the population of eight Yangon townships, including Shwepyitha and Hlaingtharyar, have struggled to survive without wages for the past year, according to the report released by the United Nations Development Program Yangon Branch on Feb. 16.
